12. Recording Policy

Unless otherwise required by University policy or applicable law, students are prohibited from recording (in either audio and/or video format) classes without the express, written permission of the instructor.

Where a student has been offered the option to record classes as a disability accommodation, the student must provide written notice of the accommodation to the instructor prior to recording any classes. All recordings are for the student's private use only and may not be shared with others unless the instructor provides written permission. Students are required to delete all class recordings within 30 days after all work in that course is complete, absent written permission from the instructor.

Violation of this policy also violates the University of North Dakota School of Law Honor Code (section 2 (ii) ("cheating, including, but not limited to, using any unauthorized aid for academic purposes") and the University of North Dakota Code of Student Life (II.B.1.a. ("Possessing or using material related to any academic work (e.g. test, homework, quiz, assignments) not authorized by the instructor or designee") and C.8. ("Intruding upon or interfering with the privacy of another by secretly or without authorization ..., photographing, recording, amplifying, or broadcasting sounds or events of another").
