If you are concerned about your past conduct and the information contained in these records, you should contact the bar admission authorities in the states in which you wish to practice to determine whether your past conduct will hamper your admission to practice.

23. PERSONAL STATEMENT:

Please submit a personal statement (electronically if applicable) that tells us more about you. The subject matter is up to you but keep in mind that the admissions committee will be seeking a sense of you as a person and also as a potential student and graduate of the UND School of Law. It is an opportunity for you to include any information that will help the Committee act on your application and that sets you apart in a significant way from other applicants. We encourage you to develop a statement that provides the Committee with insights that cannot be obtained from the CAS report or other information contained on the application. You may include information addressing any economic, cultural, and/or societal factors, your academic record, or LSAT results, which would provide the Admissions Committee with additional insight into your application.

I understand that because of the high ethical standards to which lawyers are held, the failure to disclose an act or event is often more significant, and leads to more serious consequences, than the act or event itself. I certify that all of the information on this form, and any attachments to this application, are complete and accurate and given for the purpose of having the UND School of Law take action in reliance on the information provided. I understand that any false or misleading statement by me in connection with this application or the submission of an inaccurate or incomplete application may be the basis for denial of admission, for dismissal, or for other sanctions. I also understand that, (if any information provided in this application becomes inaccurate or misleading between the date of signature on the application and the date either of denial of admission or initial registration, I must notify the UND School of Law and correct the inaccurate or misleading information.) I further understand that any information I provide in connection with my application may later be supplied to any bar admission authority to which I make application for admission to the bar without further permission from me and that a complete copy of my application will be supplied to any bar admission authority that requests it.

Note: If applying electronically, you must print out the Certification Letter, instead of the application, enclose the fee and mail the letter directly to the law school.
