

III. Transfer, Visiting and Non Degree Students

B. Transfer Students

Students transferring into the UND School of Law from another ABA-accredited law school will be given a class rank based on their cumulative GPA earned after completing one semester as a full-time student at the UND School of Law, and each semester thereafter. UND School of Law will generally accept transfer courses at the grade and credit value earned; however, students required to repeat a course at the student's original institution will only be given credit for the student's most recent enrollment in that course.

Cumulative GPA calculation will include all credits accepted from the transfer institution and all credits earned at the University of North Dakota School of Law and will be based on a 4.0 grading scale.

Students transferring from another ABA-accredited law school must successfully complete the courses in the UND School of Law's first-year curriculum and any other required courses or have successfully completed, as determined by the School of Law, substantially equivalent courses. Any courses not taken, including those deemed not substantially equivalent, must be completed after admission to the UND School of Law JD program. Students will not be allowed to enroll in coursework at the UND School of Law that would significantly duplicate coursework the student has already successfully completed.