6. Cumulative Grade Point Average

The cumulative grade point average (GPA) is calculated in two steps:

- (a) Multiply the quality points for the grade received in each course by the number of credit hours associated with that course to determine the total quality points for the course; then
- (b) Divide the total quality points for all courses by the total credit hours for all courses attempted.

A law student's GPA is based on all course work; this includes all law school courses at the School of Law, all law school courses completed at other institutions and accepted by the School of Law in satisfaction of the School of Law's graduation requirements, all non-law courses completed at UND as part of a joint degree or certificate program at the School of Law, and all UND courses that are formally cross-listed as law courses at the School of Law. Grades of I, S, AU, W or U are not included in this calculation.
