

Housing Options

UND On-campus options – If you want to reside on the main campus, this site will allow you to look at options and apply for housing.

Students can choose between residence halls or apartments. Carleton Court and University Place is counted as residence halls but are apartment-style options. Apartment options consist of 1-, 2-, and 3-bedroom units and allow for non-leaseholder occupants, such as a spouse/partner and child(ren)/dependent(s) of the leaseholder (law student).

Residence halls (including the apartment-style options) may require a meal plan for the entire academic year. Students living in apartments are not required to have a meal plan. During the summer, students can live on campus without being enrolled in Summer classes as long as they are enrolled in classes for the following Fall semester for a cost.

Off-campus options – Rent College Pads is the official off-campus housing platform of UND. You can filter housing options around Grand Forks in a variety of ways, compare pricing and see how far of a drive any building is from various points on campus.

Other sites to view off-campus options – The UNDerground Classifieds is a webpage where current UND students/staff post items for sale or apartments/houses for rent. And the other websites are apartment options current students and alumni have rented from.
